The one-room schoolhouse was the subject of Chickasha's Soulful Story last year. Their Soulful Story this year was about the first African American Chamber of Commerce (1946). Ms. Anderson's group has been involved in creating a place of historical significance in Southwest Oklahoma.

Individual ($10), Family ($20),

SOULFUL STORIES

Soulful Stories was a resounding success. Despite rescheduling due to bad weather and relocating due to rescheduling, the evening was even better attended than we had hoped. The catered soul food dinner was delicious!

Wallace Moore presented memories of Henry Ossian Flipper, the first black graduate of West Point and engineer of the still-existing drainage system at Fort Sill, from the perspective of Flipper's First Sergeant. Mr. Moore's presentation was informative and engaging - he's always a talented speaker.
